Senioritis Individual Speech

Eythan Blair
Senioritis is a terrible thing that happens to many seniors when the second semester of their senior year starts. These students get lazy. They start to hate doing homework worse than before. These students tend to miss school are just show up late. Doing this can hurt their future big time. Here are some tips to overcome senioritis.

First off is do not over look what might happen if your grades slip. Some colleges may reconsider your admission into the college if your grades slip too far. Another is if you miss too many days of school or late. Many high schools have rules for missing or late to school. If you miss one too many days, the school has the power to hold your diploma.

Seniors, you have been in school for eleven and a half years. You have worked hard to get to this point. If you do not finish strong the previous years of pain and suffering will be for nothing.

When you feel like slacking remember your parents. They have supported you through everything even though it has not always felt like it. You owe it to them.

Good luck to my fellow seniors and I hope senioritis hasn't taken over yet.

College Fair

Sarah Ingalls
The Class of 2018 went to Algona on Thursday, March 2, 2017 to the Algona High School College Fair. At the Algona College Fair, there was a variety of different schools within the state to gather and meet with college representatives.

There were 65 colleges helping and assisting multiple students and their needs. Some of the most popular colleges that were there consisted of: Iowa Central Community College, Iowa State University, University of Northern Iowa, South Dakota State University, University of Iowa, as well as many other colleges and universities.

Along with colleges and universities, there was advice and information available about financial aid as well as representatives for the Air Force and National Guard. Many of the students found that there were colleges there they had never even heard of, however, were able to get adequate advice nonetheless.

Before attending, the juniors attending were able to access information about themselves online, which would be helpful if they wanted more information from certain colleges. Therefore, when the students were at the Algona College Fair, if they had a few colleges that they wanted more information available to them, they could have the college send them more information that may be helpful.

All of the students that went were happy with the information they received and are looking forward to what the future holds for them.

Taylor Carranza
On Saturday, February 25th, five high schoolers from North Union performed at the District Individual Speech contest held at Bishop Garrigan. Freshman Michael Harrison performed After Dinner Speaking and received a division two. Sophomore Brandy Kinnander performed Prose and received a division one. Junior Sarah Ingalls performed Prose and After Dinner Speaking and received a division one in both of her categories. Seniors Claudia Kinnander and Taylor Carranza performed Prose and Storytelling and both received division ones.

Brandy, Sarah, Claudia, and Taylor will move on to State Contest on March 11th in Sioux City where they will get the chance to qualify for All-State. To qualify for All-State you must receive at least two ones at State to be considered for All-State, the judges then pick the best performers from the categories to perform at All-State. The list of names are posted on the IHSSA website.

Not many performers from North Union have made it All-State so we wish all of the performers the best of luck at their competition on the 11th! We hope you do really really really really really really really really really really well. Break a leg!

National Honor Society Penny Wars

Eythan Blair
North Union High School holds a class competition for a good cause. The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society's Pennies for Patients raises money for blood cancers. The National Honor Society in the high school uses Penny Wars to raise money for this cause. The goal this year is to raise up to $300 in change.

Each teacher has a box in their room that coins can be distributed in. The rules for the competition are simple. First off, a box in any room can not be tampered with. Pennies in the box count as one point for that class that that teacher represents. Silver count as negative points. A rule change from last year to this year is that dollar bills count as positive points this year. Once the money goes in, it can not be taken out. The Penny Wars will end March 10th.

To donate you can go online to www.lls.org and hit donate on the top right corner. You can donate once or monthly. Donating is simple and easy and it goes to a good cause. This is one of the best ways for common people to help find a cure for cancer.

Career Exploration Day

Samantha Hagedorn
On Wednesday, March 1st, some students from the sophomore class took a field trip to the Iowa Lakes campus located in Estherville. There were a total of sixteen students that attended. The bus full of kids left at 8:30 A.M. and returned back to the school after 1 P.M.. They were provided a meal for lunch on the campus.

Students came from many different schools and engaged in lots of hands on exploration activities to help determine some future career interests. There were a total of eleven different academic interests and the students were able to choose three of those to attend.

After talking to a few of the students that attended, I was able to hear their inputs on the event. Sophomore student Victoria Laubenthal said that she went to Criminal Justice, Paralegal/Legal Studies, and Graphic Design/Photography. Out of these, her favorite one was Criminal Justice because they got to experience a hands on learning activity which involved finding fingerprints on bottles and cans. When Victoria gets older, she would like to be a lawyer or a cop.

Another student that I visited with was Dayna Umscheid. She is a sophomore this year and her favorite academic interest was Human Services. She said she enjoyed it the most because the instructors put them through different simulations which showed them what it would be like to be disabled.

There will be another career exploration on the Emmetsburg campus later in the spring. Go Warriors!
